NEWSLETTER

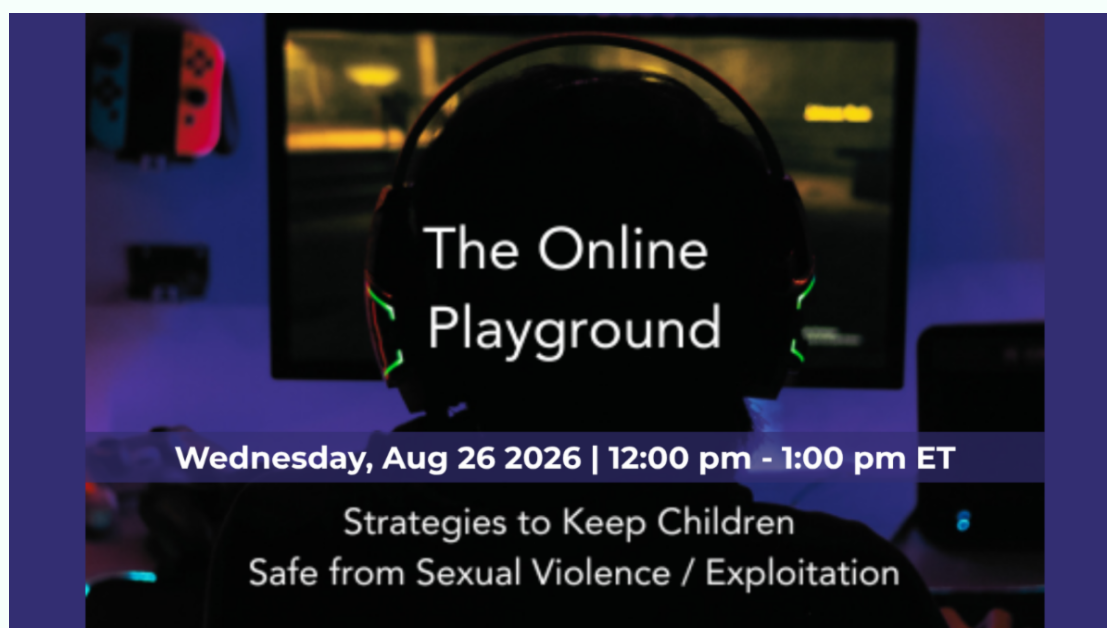

Dear Friends,

When it comes to keeping kids safe, parents and caregivers are navigating an increasingly complicated world. Many parents have questions about keeping kids safe at home, at school, in sports, and online. Online gaming has become a third space where children connect, communicate, and build friendships, but the online world comes with risks.

How can parents and caregivers give kids the freedom to explore and connect while helping protect them from sexual violence and exploitation? Next week, we're hosting a free virtual discussion to help answer that question. Legal and mental health experts will share practical strategies for recognizing risks, responding to concerns, and creating safer online spaces for kids.

Whether you're a parent, grandparent, educator, coach, or another trusted adult in a child's life, we invite you to join us for The Online Playground: Strategies to Keep Children Safe from Sexual Violence & Exploitation.

In solidarity,
Stacy

Empowering Women Leaders

Last month, VRLC Executive Director Stacy Malone was recognized as one of Women2Women's 20 for 20 honorees at a celebration in Boston marking the organization's 20th anniversary. For 20 years, Women2Women, a program of Empower Peace, has equipped rising young female leaders from around the world with the skills, connections and opportunities to become leaders in their communities and beyond. The 20 for 20 celebration honored 20 outstanding women who have helped shape the program throughout its first two decades. Congrats to Stacy and all of this year's honorees!
